

NUS Business School

Department of Strategy & Policy

Strategy Position Announcement

The National University of Singapore (NUS) Business School invites applications for an open-rank position in the area of Strategy. We are seeking an individual with an established record or with strong potential to conduct excellent scholarly research within the broadly defined strategy area.

NUS is a major comprehensive research university with 27,000 undergraduate students and 11,000 graduate students. As a highly ranked and internationally recognized research-intensive institution, the school has extensive academic and industry links to Asian countries such as China, India and the rest of the world.

The Strategy & Policy department is a group of dynamic scholars conducting research and teaching in the areas of strategy and organization, entrepreneurship and innovation, and public policy management. Recent works from our colleagues have been published in leading management journals as Academy of Management Journal, Administrative Science Quarterly, Management Science, Organization Science, and Strategic Management Journal.

NUS provides a supportive environment including highly competitive salaries/benefits, generous research grants, and reasonable teaching loads. For more information about the school and the department, please visit <http://bschool.nus.edu/>.

For scholars with an interest in Asia, not only as a research focus but also as a place to live and work, NUS and Singapore have much to offer. More information about Singapore is available at <http://www.contactsingapore.sg/>. Applicants interested in meeting our faculty members at the AOM meetings should send their CV to bprecruit@nus.edu.sg before July 31. Completed applications must be received by November 11, 2016. Please submit application materials (cover letter, CV, research and teaching statements, key publications, and names of three references) to bprecruit@nus.edu.sg.
